

Swell

Eric Quade

The ocean roars with unmatched fury
As I entertain a fleeting notion
The waves they crash
Electric commotion
I surrender to its violent motions
Relaxed I glide across the sea
A tethered vessel
A floating buoy
And just as I begin to sink
I think of land
A distant mystique