

Take Care, Brother

Samantha Bell

All had thought, you were heartless; your heart a lifeless desert.
When the day came, it shattered that image into a million pieces.

You knew not to go. You are letting him win.
You've given him the satisfaction he craves.
You thought it was safe, once he walked away
But he came back to you. Whispers to you.

And then you lost the brutal battle with the devil
It feels as though he has risen from the depths,
Unlocking the dungeon that held your emotions.
Now, at the brim of the floodgates,
So high, about to drown your façade
It attacks with the force of a tsunami
The secret you do not want exposed.
Your eyes scream the truth
Tears flow upon your face,
Forming a puddle of truth
That you passionately hate.

He knows. You care.